FIRE COLLEGE HOSTS FIRE COLLEGE WEEK

The 52nd Annual Fire College Week was held this past week at the Alabama State Fire College in Tuscaloosa. The conference opened with a presentation by Mr. J.F. Casey, deputy superintendent of the National Fire Academy in Emmitsburg, Maryland.

Thirty firefighters from across the state participated in a week of basic fire training courses consisting of pumps, ventilation, ladder practices, and self-contained breathing apparatus.

The conference participants had the opportunity to be a part of an actual structure blaze. The building, a two-story house owned and donated by Elk Roofing Co., provided intense training in an actual environment of a burning house. This situation is one faced by all firefighters in the line of duty.

The fire college instructors ignited the fire and the students extinguished the structure under the instructors' supervision. The Tuscaloosa Fire Department assisted with a rescue unit and a pumper to provide first aid, extra manpower and equipment.

Regional coordinators, Robert Nix and Wayne Murray, were in charge of planning and coordinating the events of Fire College Week.
